adding Sundar (PM Director for Google Pack)

I'm chatting with Sundar right now and he will have a response shortly

A reader of John Battelle's Searchblog writes that the Spyware Doctor which is part of Google Pack removes DC tracking cookies as spyware. Is this true? Eric will be on stage w/John at Web 2.0 in an hour and he may raise this issue. Thanks for your prompt attention to this.

Here is another question. This one (I apologize in advance) is a little more snarky than my previous, more earnest, one.

Eric: If I download Google Pack, it bundles the "Spyware Doctor" software.

Spyware Doctor detects and removes DoubleClick tracking cookies.

So Google essentially admits that DoubleClick, to this very day, behaves like spyware.

How do you reconcile this with your purchase of DoubleClick? Why is this not a double standard?
